MHP among Germany's most popular employers

- MHP counts among the top 20 employers in their sector based on the latest rankings of Statista and "stern" magazine
- The management and IT consulting company was ranked twelfth in category "Consulting, Research and Technology"
- The analysis was based in part on employee recommendations
- Over 33,000 employees were surveyed to determine Germany's 650 most popular employers

Ludwigsburg – The management and IT consulting company MHP was voted one of Germany's most highly rated employers on the basis of employee evaluations. The Porsche subsidiary was ranked twelfth in category "Consulting, Research and Technology" and thus counts among the Top 20. This finding results from the latest study by the prestigious market research company Statista and the "stern" magazine. In total, 650 employers operating in Germany were identified and rated in 24 different categories. Over 33,000 employees, who took part via online access panels, were surveyed for the analysis. They had the opportunity of providing responses on various topics with respect to their own company – with the question of whether they would recommend it to others being crucial. The evaluations related to the employer brand used by the companies in their PR and recruitment activities. The respondents could also select companies from their industry and rate them.

Ralf Hofmann, co-founder and CEO of MHP: "We aim to find as well as retain talents who share our values, our spirit, and our commitment. A big thank you to our team for this result. It is you who make the company what it is and contribute to our success story!"
